DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE

Security Committee

SECOM-D-379

24 November 1982

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director of Central Intelligence

FROM:

Chairman

25X1

SUBJECT: Capitol Hill Technical Security

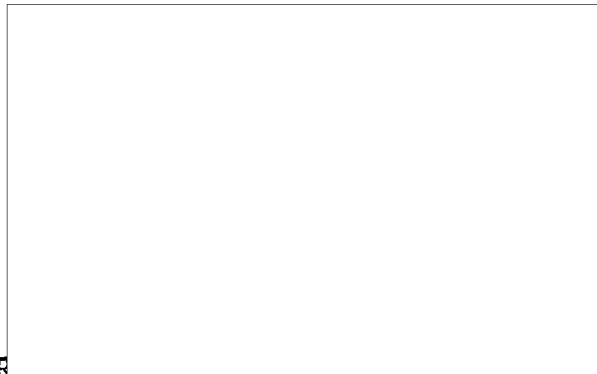

1. On 23 November 1982, at a meeting attended by the Sergeants at Arms of the House and Senate, Capt. Michael Boyle of the U. S. Capitol Police, Gene Dean of the FBI, Burt Hutchings and me, Mr. Dean acknowledged the FBI's assumption of the lead role in upgrading the technical surveillance countermeasures capability of the U. S. Capitol Police. Community support of the effort was assured, including use of the Interagency Training Center's facilities, and the assignment by the Army of a team to cover Department of Defense (DoD) classified testimony and assist in on-the-job training of the Capitol Police teams.

2. Capt. Boyle proposed that the Capitol Police be given membership on the Security Committee in order to keep apprised of technical finds. I responded that, while membership would not be proper, the Capitol Police will be kept abreast of technical developments through the FBI.

3. On 22 November, a meeting at Capitol Police Headquarters included the above participants (minus the sergeants at arms) and representatives of the technical countermeasures units of the FBI, Army, CIA and Capitol Police. The Army plans to negotiate a memorandum of agreement with the Capitol Police. It would cover Army technical support of DoD classified testimony and on-the-job training of the police technicians. The Army representative also wants the agreement to include appropriate authorization for the Army technical team to participate with Capitol Police technicians in ACM operations not involving DoD testimony, if they are expected to do so.

4. The transfer of lead roles appears to have been completed with the above actions.
